HOAGLAND'S
NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!
W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,
Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.
He respectfully refers to the following
CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on India Rubber so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

Steam communication between Germany and the United States is multiplying very rapidly. Recent advices state that a company has been organized for the purpose of establishing a line of steamers between Stettin and New York, and two large vessels, each 310 feet long, and capable of transporting 700 to 800 passengers, have been ordered of a ship-building firm in England. Stettin is far up the Oder, and the line of steamers will probably run from Swinemunde, its outport on the Baltic. The company will bear the title "The Baltic Lloyd Stettin and American Steam Navigation Company." The Weser Zeitung, published at Bremen, states that the three new steamers of the North German Lloyds will be launched this month to run on the West India line, and that during the present June nine steamers will leave Bremen for New York and three for Baltimore. A steamer will sail from Bremen for New Orleans next September, and a new steamer, the K..., is now building to run on the New Orleans line.

A leading commercial journal of New York dwells at length on the improved aspects of commerce. During ten months of the current fiscal year, the imports into the United States had increased but five per cent. over last year, while the increase of exports was thirty-six per cent., gold values. The net result for the year is placed at these figures:

Exports and re-exports	$468,845,503
Imports	45[illegible]
Excess of exports of	$10,[illegible]

It is this balancing of imports with exports that has restricted the exports of treasure, and kept down the gold premium. Heretofore the United States has not furnished, in the average of years, more than one tenth of the bread stuffs imported into the United Kingdom, but during the last twelve months, with two good harvests, we have supplied nearly four-tenths its whole importation of Wheat and Flour. Again, we have ministered to the wants of the Lancashire Cotton spinners from our liberal surplus of the great staple. Last year many Manchester mills were forced either to stop altogether or run on short time, owing to an inadequate supply of Cotton. Now, nearly all the spindles are in motion and working at a moderate profit. In thus ministering to the wants of Great Britain, we have changed the whole complexion of our financial situation, and if the present promise of good crops of Grain, Cotton, Tobacco, &c., shall be realized, a resumption of specie payments need not longer be deferred.

The railway construction in the United States continues at a marvelous rate. There are now in operation in the United States, according to the manual of Mr. H. V. Poor, for 1870-71, no less than 46,254 miles of railroad, of which 5,000 miles were constructed within the past year at a cost of $150,000,000. The greatest extent of line constructed any previous year was in 1856, when 3,643 miles of line were built. Mr. Poor estimates the tonnage of all roads at 2,500 tons per mile of line, or 117,000,000 tons. Deducting from this quantity 15,000,000 tons for duplications and for low priced freight, the aggregate net merchandise tonnage would be 72,000,000 tons, having a value ($150 per ton) of $10,800,000,000—a sum more than four times greater than the whole amount of the public debt, and equal to six times the cost of the railroads. The gross tonnage per head, estimating the entire population at 38,315,000, was 6,170 pounds. The value of this tonnage was $282 per head. This immense tonnage and value have been almost wholly the creation of our railroads within the last eighteen years. The tonnage of all the railroads in the United States in 1851, the date of the opening of the Erie Railway, did not exceed 5,000,000 of tons, the value of which did not exceed $750,000,000. The earnings of all the railroads of the country for that year from freight were $20,192,104. The past year they were fully $300,000,000. The annual increase of gross tonnage has averaged 5,222,222 tons annually; the annual increase in the value of the same has been $600,000,000. It is no wonder that the railroad interest has grown to be so powerful.

The success of the Suez Canal has served, among other things, to make the world dissatisfied with all the existing channels of commerce which are out of a straight line; and accordingly the attention of almost every trading country in the world is now turned toward some means of shortening the water routes of commerce. In this country the government has upon its hands the great project of connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific, by means of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Darien, when the surveying parties now on the ground have fixed upon a practicable route. Incomplete surveys have also been made of Nicaragua and Tehuantepec, without satisfactory results thus far. But modern engineering has overcome greater difficulties than these; and it cannot be many years before a way is opened to our merchant vessels into the Pacific Ocean without having to double Cape Horn.

A scheme is also proposed in France to open a continuous water way from the Gulf of Lyons to the Bay of Biscay, two hundred and twenty-five miles in length, conforming in width and depth to the Suez Canal, and costing by estimate $125,000,000. For many years England has commanded the trade of the Mediterranean and its tributaries from her stronghold of Gibraltar. With this short cut across her own soil, France hopes to control a considerable portion of the twenty million tons of shipping which annually pass through the Straits of Gibraltar to the Adriatic and Black Sea, and to render the ancient Fortress of Gibraltar a comparatively useless luxury to her old rival. The enterprise is favored by the government, and liberal subscriptions have been made to the capital stock of the company now engaged in surveying the route. It is announced, also, that the Prussian Government proposes in like manner to connect the Baltic Sea with the German Ocean.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Gov. Musgrave of British Columbia, married a few days ago at San Francisco a niece of Cyrus W. Field.

The Colonist says that the population of Victoria City and district, exclusive of Indians, is now 5,313 against 3,011 in 1867.

A correspondent writing from Ottawa in regard to the proposed Canadian Pacific Railway, gives in round figures its estimated cost thus: First and second sections (2,060 miles), $75,000,000. Third section, (152 miles) $18,000,000. Other portions, $7,000,000. Total, $100,000,000. Very easy—on paper.

The other day the Ven. Archdeacon Woods, of New Westminster, refused to perform the funeral service of the Church of England over the remains of a member of the Masonic Fraternity, because the Masons also proposed to perform the rites over the remains. Singular instance of clerical bigotry.

Capt. Santer, of the bark Flying Mist, which recently arrived at Victoria, reports that the bark Buena Vista left Kodiak some weeks ago, having on board a cargo of ice amounting to 600 tons. Pieces of a wreck answering to portions of the Buena Vista have been picked up along the coast, and it is feared that the bark and entire crew have been lost.

The census of New Westminster shows the following conditions for 1870. Population (exclusive of Indians) 5[illegible], of whom 17[illegible] are females. Births during the year, 2[illegible]; deaths, 2[illegible]; marriages, 5. Occupations: agriculture, 17[illegible]; manufactures, 250; trade, 4[illegible]. Of wheat there were 76 acres; barley, [illegible]; oats, 15[illegible]; peas, 7[illegible]; potatoes, 1[illegible]; total 561 acres. Live stock—horses 292; cattle, 2,367; pigs, 1,40[illegible].

A Connecticut paper reports that a town clerk in that State has been accustomed to sign marriage certificates in blank and to give them to a certain clergyman (who, as is naively remarked, does "much marrying,") to be filled out and used at his discretion.

WASHINGTON FACT AND GOSSIP.

The McGarrahan case is still in Congress. The House Judiciary Committee have agreed to report in his favor. It is said that the case of the New Idria Mining Company is now regarded as hopeless, though there is no knowing what turn the case will take next.

The joint resolution regarding the Umatilla reservation in this State, which passed both Houses of Congress, merely authorizes the President to negotiate with the Indians for the purpose of ascertaining on what terms they would be willing to give up their little title to the reservation.

The House Territorial Committee have very properly agreed to report a bill for the admission of the Territory of New Mexico as a State, with the name of Lincoln. The names of Washington and Lincoln are thus, the only two selected to be given to any of the States—Washington, the Father of his country, and Lincoln, its Preserver and Restorer. The names of these two great historical characters should be perpetuated in a record as fadeless as time itself. Of both it can be said with equal truth, "They filled the measure of their country's glory."

The following special order has just been issued from the War Department: For the purpose of the diffusion of instruction, the Lieutenants of the five Artillery regiments are expected to serve in turn with the Light Batteries of their respective regiments not exceeding two years at any one tour. From this rule may be excepted Lieutenants in command of companies, the Captains of which are indefinitely absent, regimental Staff officers, and such officers as from accidental causes are unable to ride. Commanding officers of regiments will in due season report the names of officers who should be transferred under this order.

The House Committee on Public Lands recently agreed to report a bill repealing the Act passed by the Thirty ninth Congress, confirming to one Jose Dominguez, a Spanish grant near Santa Barbara, California, and known by that name. The grant covers about two hundred thousand acres of land, and has a large number of settlers upon it. According to the evidence offered in the report the papers are forged on which the Act was obtained, Dominguez being sworn says he never knew or had any thing to do with the proceedings taken in his name. It further appears that the alleged grant never covered that land on which the Act placed it.

The following circular letter has been issued from the United States Census Office to United States Marshals: "You are authorized at your discretion to give to the press the total population of towns, cities, and counties, when complete returns from the same shall have been received at your office and so far examined as to satisfy yourself of the thoroughness and accuracy of the work. This power, however, you will reserve to yourself, and not allow assistants to divulge the results of the enumeration. This will not be considered as causing any departure from the rule laid down in instructions from the Department that all the personal aspects of the census shall be strictly confidential."

The following is from the Washington Chronicle of June 22: "A special to the New York Times of yesterday says that a rumor was very current on Saturday to the effect that the President has decided to withdraw the nomination of Mr. Akerman as Attorney General, and send in the name of Senator Williams, of Oregon. It was without foundation, of course, and it was improbable on the face of it, as the President does not act in that way on such a matter. The Senate will probably be left either to confirm or reject the nomination of Mr. Akerman. It is but expressing a very general feeling, however, to say that the nomination of Senator Williams to any position in the Cabinet would be received with great satisfaction."

It is proper for us to add to this that Senator Williams intends to serve out his term in the Senate and would not receive any appointment whatever that would necessitate the vacation of his seat.

Amos T. Akerman.

HOW HIS APPOINTMENT AS ATTORNEY GENERAL IS RECEIVED IN GEORGIA.

[From the Atlanta New Era, June 17.]

The nomination of Hon. Amos T. Akerman to the position of United States Attorney, as announced by our dispatches this morning, meets the approbation of the Republican Party in this State, and is a fitting tribute to the merits of that gentleman as a jurist and as a man. It is also a timely recognition of his services as a firm and undoubted Southern Republican who has given much of his time and talents to the cause of reconstruction in Georgia. Mr. Akerman has been closely identified with the Republican Party in this State from the day of its formation to the organization of the local State Government. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention under the Reconstruction acts; supported Gov. Bullock's election, was Presidential elector at large on the Grant ticket with Senator Farrow; supported the organization of the Legislature under the act of December last; and though a personal friend of Mr. Hill, has never allowed himself to be drawn into any position of antagonism to the Republican Party in this State. He stands well with his party, and commands the respect and confidence of all men, regardless of party, who know him personally. We therefore congratulate the Republicans in Georgia upon his nomination to this honorable position as Cabinet Minister at Washington.

The fact that Mr. Akerman has been so closely allied with the fortunes of the Republican organization in this State, is in itself a sufficient guarantee of the indorsement by the President of the party of which he is and has been a leader; and this indorsement is all the more satisfactory and gratifying in view of the fact that the Chairman of our State Central Executive Committee, Hon. Foster Blodgett, is now in Washington, and was consulted in this fitting recognition of the claims of the party in Georgia.

There is much to cheer the Republicans of our State in this morning's news. The appointment of one of our Radical Republican leaders to the high Cabinet office of Attorney General of the United States, and the action of the Reconstruction Committee in overruling the decision of the Committee made when several of the members were absent, by striking out the Bingham proviso, will be very satisfactory to our party friends, and very discouraging to the Bryant wing of the Democracy.

The case of John Mitchel vs. John A. Dix, Major General United States Army, is now in the New York courts. Mitchel claims excessive damages for imprisonment, which imprisonment was ordered by Gen. Grant soon after the assassination of President Lincoln. Just after this terrible event the Richmond Examiner, of which Mitchel was the editor, contained a virulent article on the assassination, and this was the cause of the arrest.

The Government has made the heart of the Indian chief, Red Cloud, "very big," according to the telegram, by granting his request for seventeen horses, to be delivered to his party when they leave the cities for their prairie homes. It is to be hoped that his heart may remain "very big," and that it may be a long time before we hear that he has renewed hostilities against the pale faces.

Raymond, Commissioner of Mining, estimates the total yield of precious metals in all the States and Territories for the year 1869, at $63,500,000. Nevada is credited with fourteen millions; Montana, twelve; Idaho, seven; Colorado and Wyoming, four; and California twenty millions. Of the gold produced, probably more than half is the result of quartz mining.

The Cleveland Herald insists that the adage about the early bird catching the worm has done a world of mischief, that it never was intended to apply to any animal that did not eat its food raw.

Our Foreign Policy.

Under the above title we find a thoughtful article in the New York Times of June 18, which commends itself to the calm judgment of every American citizen. In regard to the late bluster with reference to Cuba that journal speaks plainly, and does not hesitate to call things by their right names. The recent hue and cry, ostensibly in the interest of patriots fighting for their country's freedom, it ascribes to demagogism, which is always ready for war at an hour's notice. It justly thinks that this sort of Congressional buncombe, while perfectly understood at home, is liable to produce misapprehension abroad relative to the temper of our people and the purposes of our Government. Reviewing our foreign relations during the late war, and referring to the value of patient judgment, even of forbearance, in discussions affecting our attitude toward other nations, the Times, after alluding to our success in avoiding embarrassing complications, says:

The same methods now commend themselves to President Grant. No man imagines that cowardice or indecision will ever taint his Administration. He is not indifferent to the honor or rights of the country, or to the duty of caring for American citizens wherever they are placed. His last message in reference to San Domingo indicates that his conception of our expansive destiny lacks neither breadth nor force. His message in reference to Cuba reveals with equal clearness his understanding of the true ground of complaint against Spain, and his disposition to use all proper means of checking the horrors, and securing redress for the wrongs, to which the Cuban insurrection has given rise. We are persuaded his San Domingo policy foreshadows most important territorial acquisitions, and that, left to his own cool judgment, negotiations are possible with Spain which shall protect the rights of Americans in Cuba, mitigate the atrocities which prevail there, and lay the foundations of an arrangement which will render the acquisition of the island peaceful and sure.

The difference between the reckless agression which demagogues recommended and the firm just course which General Grant pursues cannot be too thoroughly understood. The demagogues would make American diplomacy a nuisance everywhere; they would reverse Washington's maxim, and plunge into foreign entanglements on the faintest pretext. Morality, international law, the higher expediency whereof justice is the basis—they would discard as unworthy of a moment's notice. General Grant, on the other hand desires above all things to do right. His instinctive sense of equity comports with his sense of official responsibility, and with that respect for law which is essential to national dignity and strength. Not afraid of war, he is unwilling to provoke it without reason. He is firm in the assertion of the nation's honor without indulging in needless contention or insolence. If he be allowed to follow this policy to its end, we shall see American influence and American diplomacy more potent than in any former period. There are signs in the northern horizon which render this particularly desirable. The relationship of the British provinces along our northern border to the parent country evidently approaches a crisis the issues of which we cannot watch with indifference. When that occurs—and occur it will, in all probability, before the close of the present Administration—the moral strength which is so conspicuous an element in Gen. Grant's foreign policy will have much to do in determining the result.

And this policy harmonizes with the immediate interests of the country. However indifferent the demagogues may be to the possibilities of foreign war, the great body of the people are in no mood to provoke it. Should events make it necessary, they will face it bravely. Just now, however, they realize the need and profitableness of peace; and they will esteem most highly the policy which, while upholding the true mission of the Republic, aims at its speedy recovery from the effects of the conflict from which it has so recently emerged. If the demagogues think differently, let them submit the issue squarely to the national judgment.

To this the Washington Chronicle adds: The people heartily indorse the President's foreign policy. He took a solemn oath to perform the duties of his great office without passion and without partiality, and he is doing it. The people generally do not desire to be embroiled in wars with foreign nations without sufficient provocation, and expect the President, as the executive head of the nation, to guard against unnecessary foreign complications. It is only the thoughtless declaimers who are for war; the people are for peace.

Result of Wrong Doing

The ke[illegible] of the Herald [illegible] nally it to sm[illegible] out with [illegible] arraying [illegible] pl[illegible] against the integrity of [illegible] party It has mad[e] [illegible] Our [illegible] has bee[n] cook[illegible] to prepare the Democr[illegible] from the South[ern] [illegible] appeal [illegible] with a direct proposit[ion] [illegible] for Williams and declares that this paper [illegible] kind of crazy notion that Williams [illegible] elect[ed] This it insists is the object we have in view in publishin[g] articles about the H[umbol]dt branch railroad and [illegible] the [illegible] importance of that road t[o] the [So]uthern [counties] Now inasmuch as not a syllabl[e] has appeared in this paper since the [illegible] which indicates any sort [of] [illegible] or [illegible] that Williams can be re-elected or that we have the slightest hope or expectation of such a thing it would seem that the Herald has been conjuring up for itself causes of alarm and then trying to accuse us of concocting schemes to frighten it and damage its party If the OREGONIAN were foolish enough to suppose that a Legislature in which the Democrats have a dozen majority or more would elect a Republican Senator it would then be on a level with the Herald a paper which shows by the state of alarm that it has worked itself into that it is [illegible] apprehensive of such a result The most we have ever said was to urge the people of Southern Oregon to look out for their railroad interests They will do [illegible] this if they allow Smith or Kelly or any one who was prominent in leading the attack against the great measure proposed by Williams for their benefit, to be elected Senator The scare of the Herald on this subject indicates a conscious ness on its part that Southern Oregon was unjustly dealt with in the fight that was made here and in other counties by the Democracy against the interests of that part of the State in the late election It indicates further the fear of that paper lest the members from the Southern counties may go back on the man whom the Ladd Smith Fengra[illegible] road clique would like to see elected and insist on somebody from their own section who would be favorable to their interests and not the creature of the Humboldt road ring and of the Central Pacific Company It grieves us to see the Herald so distressed about this matter but at the same time we are bound to say that its present unhappiness is the legitimate consequence of the most unfair and unjust warfare which it made in the election against the railroad interests of the Southern counties, at the bidding of Mr W S Ladd, banker, Mr. J. S Smith, Congressman and others who had a point to gain in securing the construction of the Humboldt branch to Eugene City instead of the Rogue river valley Wrong doing is always followed by an unhappy state of mind It makes one suspicious and capable of fear[illegible] and this is what is the matter with the Herald "

Protection in Great Britain

The impression that protection is a dead issue in Great Britain has met with several rough shocks during the last year or two and although the great men in Parliament and the great newspapers in London affect to despise the remonstrants against their policy, the agitation goes on and gathers force as it goes In the preface to a new English work, entitled "Protection to Native Industry" by Sir Edward Sullivan the following occurs. After speaking of the depression of the great manufacturing interests and the distress of the working classes, the writer says

> The remedy for the present state of things is not to export our workmen and import of manufactur[es] ; but to keep our workmen and manufac ture for ourselves England is the only country in the world that does not in some shape or another protect native industry, and preserve a pre[fere]ntial market for its own operatives Theoretically it may be very chivalrous practically it is very stupid

Seeks Retirement.

There is bad news for the Oregon repudiators Their great champion in Congress, the Honorable William Mungen who has delivered speeches that have been reproduced in Oregon by the Democratic organs, in the form of "repudiation extras," for the instruction and delight of the faithful here will return to Congress no more This we gather from the Cincinnati Chronicle, which paper says

> Our patriotic friend from the Fifth District, we learn, on reliable authority, and to our intense regret, declines to again contend for a seat in the Sanhedrim of the nation In public conversation at a recent date, he announced himself weary of the cares of official life, and expressed himself determined to seek the shades of retirement, where, on the classic banks of the tranquil Auglaize, he may, at his heart's leisure, fiddle and fish while he ruminates on the emptiness of Congressional honors, and recovers from the violence of the stab which his financial theories received in the house of his friends

Senator Corbett in a recent speech argued strongly for the discontinuance of the income tax His speech was one of the best that has been delivered on the subject It was made in reply to Senator Sherman of Ohio who had argued for a renewal of the tax There has been much difference of opinion on this subject among members of both parties in Congress. The House voted to reduce the tax to three per cent and to exempt all incomes below $2,000 The Senate has voted to reduce it to two and a half per cent It now seems probable that a rate approximating to this will be agreed upon as a compromise between those who are in favor of renewing the tax at the old rate of five per cent and those who are in favor of total repeal

The organ of the Portland capitalists (so called) stated that the west side plant which has been sold to Mr H Halley brought $70,000 but that those who subscribed money, lands etc., are not to be reimbursed Now why can't the fair thing be done? Can't a general average be made? Are the losses sustained by the wreck to fall on one class exclusively? Seventy thousand dollars the proceeds of the sale of what was saved out of the disaster, is a very pretty sum and the capitalists (so-called) should be asked to make an equitable division so that the loss will not fall quite so heavily on the large class of persons who subscribed sums that they can ill afford to lose

We shall see if those Democratic aspirants for the United States Senate who joined in the furious onslaught upon the railroad interests of the southern counties will go to Salem in September and face the members of the Legislature from those counties and then and there contend for the same scheme We predict they will be very anxious to give pledges to take the other track

A gentleman from Washington county informs us that the people there are generally well satisfied with the transfer of the west side railroad franchise They prefer a monopolist who will build railroads to monopolists who won't build them

Political Situation and the Republican Party

The Republican party being responsible for the government [illegible] has [illegible] its best to meet [illegible] that its opponents [illegible] not [illegible] set with [illegible] must meet the approval of an enlightened public judgment since a free people will only support a party as that party governs wisely and well For many years the Republican party has [illegible] the country [illegible] principles [illegible] the judgment of the people [illegible] the [illegible] will [illegible] party [illegible] majority in the [illegible] will have [illegible] members in that body than they have in the present one And [illegible] it is desirable that should [illegible] opposition [illegible] would [illegible] Republicans to be more careful and [illegible] all their [illegible] A this is not the Presidential year it is not to be expected that the Republicans will make so clean a sweep in the [illegible] Congressmen as they did in 1868 The [illegible] some dissensions in the party and the opportunity offered [illegible] the elections of this year will be taken advantage of to settle them For instance an independent Republican movement has been started in Allegheny county Pennsylvania, where the Republicans have 10 000 majority and a full ticket has been nominated including two Congressmen This may give both those Districts to the Democrats In other places there are differences growing out of [illegible] and local matters which may and probably will cause [illegible] losses to the Republican party There are no essential differences in the party regarding the payment of the public debt [illegible] all Republicans are for paying it to the last dollar but the divisions are on the methods of taxation and other matters of detail These however are not so serious as to threaten the ascendency of the party in the next House As for the Senate it is assuredly Republican for five years to come

But if the Republican party has difficulties the Democratic party has difficulties also unlike in kind but really greater than those of its opponents. An article in the Cincinnati Gazette speaks thus of the Democratic party in connection with the coming elections

> As a party it has no objects It has no principles and no capacity to make principles It is without soul without spirit, and without principle Jefferson Davis and Vallandigham had principles Horatio Seymour and Alexander H Stephens had principles It matters not how wild, how bad, or how depraved—they had ideas to follow But, the present amphibious thing called the Democratic party has neither ideas nor principles Amidst the utter confusion of all thoughts and all expressions uttered in their conventions we can discern but one thing, clearly, and that is dishonesty That is not a principle It is only a negation of principle Take the platform of the Democratic Convention at Columbus as an example It declares for every old absurdity which had signalized the party in the days of stolidity and decrepitude It talks as if the 15th amendment was a thing to be opposed or repealed It talks of the Government taxing its own notes as if there were a Chamber of Commerce in America who would not pronounce a merchant, who having the power did that to be dishonest In fine the Democratic party in its resolutions, shows that it has neither the sagacity to comprehend the situation of the country nor the capacity to make new issues " It is going into the campaigns of this year to repeat its old follies and to meet its accustomed defeat If it could be induced to adopt in the other States the same platform it adopted in Oregon its fate would be annihilation

Democratic papers are still publishing affidavits about the late election It would seem that the party managers recognize the fact that the average reputation of the Democracy for veracity has got so low that no statement will be believed unless it is sworn to The general impression of the public is that the letting off of these volleys of oaths don't help matters much

THE TERRITORIES

A daily postal service is asked for between Helena, (Montana) and Corinne

About Fort Benton Indian depredations are frequent, and guards are out continually to keep them off

The fat men of Boise City had a meeting and tried to make up a foot race for the Fourth of July but failed

The corner stone of the Idaho Penitentiary was laid at Boise City on the 4th of July A gallows or two should be erected in the Territory without delay

The Alaska Times tells of salmon weighing 80 to 90 pounds as a frequent thing in those waters, and claims to have the most productive and excellent salmon fisheries extant

In Montana there is a market for all kinds of agricultural machinery a fact that shows that the people there produce their own food and no longer have to bring the staple articles from abroad

Homicide is becoming the prevailing diversion in Idaho Still another case is reported The Boise Statesman of Saturday says that early in the week a man named Roberts killed a man named McIntyre at Rocky Bar This is the fourth homicide in that part of the Territory within the space of two weeks The rest of the Territory still to hear from

The Walla Walla Union, states that Robinson the man who has bilked so many men by representing that he had struck rich quartz mines has just played another party He in company with three other men was at Rock creek near Pend Oreille Lake where Robinson gave them the slip, taking with him about nine hundred dollars of money belonging to the party The last heard from him he was at the lake They are pursuing him

The city of Corinne in Utah has grown to be quite a commercial point within the last few months It is the largest Gentile town in Utah is located on the Railroad and near Salt Lake [illegible] River bounds the town on the South, and is a navigable stream Corinne has become the great depot for all the supplies sent to Montana Utah and Idaho Several of the largest forwarding and commission houses in the country, have extensive branches at Corinne In most dispatches from Corinne we have noticed numerous announcements that large quantities of freight have arrived there from the East Very little comes from the West There is a great deal more in this announcement than one would suppose from a mere casual reading It shows that California and Oregon have [illegible] their trade with the Territories and that Eastern cities are profiting by our loss

Southern papers notice that whereas in times past Southern people paid little attention to the rag business and thought it rather humiliating to hoard their rags and bring them to market, since the war the business has become rather a feature there.

A man lately arrived in Sioux City with 42 000 muskrat skins 500 mink 300 otter, and 500 wolf skins, purchased from the Indians in the vicinity.

"From the first many persons have had entire confidence that the capitalists (so called) who made such a big [illegible] about their devotion to the west side road never intended to aid the enterprise to the extent of one dollar They could talk and they could bluster but when it came to putting up money they [illegible] failed. The opportunity was offered them to secure the west side road to themselves upon raising the insignificant sum of fifty thousand dollars They objected to putting it up as long as Gaston held the stock (a very ungrateful position to that gentleman after the amount of dirty work he has done for them) and then to leave them no excuse Gaston offered to give them his stock and leave the concern if they would raise the money and secure the road It is well understood that he made this proposition at the meeting held at Ladd's Bank But they still would not raise the money Gaston waited for two weeks on these vacant railroad capitalists, and seeing they had no [illegible] and that the west side road was going into bankruptcy and ruin he took the only [illegible] any man could take to secure a railroad to Portland and the west side counties and turn it over to a man who was able willing and determined to build a road for the west side people

ORO FINO THEATER The extreme heat of the week has operated much against the interest of the theatres [illegible] but yet the amusements of [illegible] have [illegible] two or three very good houses [illegible] a very pretty burlesque has been the principal card of the week The cast gives several of the people an excellent chance to display their ability in favorite rolls [illegible] particularly heavy villain is entitled to the greatest share of credit for the successful production of the piece The adoption of the lines to men and things and events in Portland and Oregon and the current slang of the [illegible] were mostly arranged by him and very neatly, too [illegible] His acting in the piece also seems to have struck the right cord in his audience, [illegible] played Diavolo [illegible] to the [illegible] of the crowd Her make up was very neat and her acting quite creditable Miss Minnie [illegible] special mention for the life and abandon of [illegible] personation She generally does manage to get through with whatever she tries in such a manner as to create a favorable impression upon the audience. [illegible] was but common place. [illegible] as well as a promising young [illegible] was hardly dashing enough In most of her personations she seems laboring under some unaccountable restraint The audience always takes the impression that she could do a better if she would only let loose. She made a good hit or two in the opening comedy in which [illegible] also Mr Vinson exhibited some of his peculiar genius PERSONAL —Mr J [illegible] O'Meara returned by last steamer with the material for a large morning and evening daily newspaper to be called the Bulletin All particulars are set forth in the prospectus to be found in our second page Mr O'Meara will have editorial charge Dr A A [illegible], late of San Francisco will be on the editorial staff also Of this gentleman we have seen several flattering notices in the California press He was formerly local editor of the San Francisco Times then [illegible] correspondent of the [illegible] and lately has belonged to the editorial staff of that paper The Sacramento Record says of him [illegible] much and [illegible] confidently congratulate our Oregonian [illegible] in the prospect of securing a live journalist an able writer and a gentlemanly associate in the [illegible] We wish him a pleasant journey and a prosperous career in his new home For ourselves—and we presume that we might also, in behalf of the Oregon press—we give the Doctor welcome to his journalistic position Of Mr. O'Meara we need [illegible] He is quite as well known as an able newspaper conductor, as any man on the North Pacific coast and under the labors of these two gentlemen we shall expect to find the Bulletin a lively competitor among the established newspapers of the State.

WHAT AILS THE WEATHER? We have found out where the matter [illegible] the spots on the sun In May the weather was cool and by a coincidence in that month numerous spots were discovered on the sun—dark spots The philosophers the [illegible] and numerous other wise men and [illegible] immediately seized upon these spots—figuratively seizure—and made them account in the most satisfactory manner for the cool weather [illegible] the spots according to the best authorities [illegible] from the old dad planet, are [illegible] and still mighty in their refrigerating influences They cooled off the month of June and now they are engaged in [illegible] July They have got the mercury [illegible] to 102 degrees in the shade and if they keep [illegible] enough in the same direction [illegible] down to 190 Spots may be [illegible] under certain circumstances but in the present case they have not been conspicuous as coolers If [illegible] Shakespeare had [illegible] said so we should be tempted to say with [illegible] out damned spot! but [illegible] the remark [illegible] that these spots were coolers

Board of Trade.—Adjourned Meeting.—Pursuant to notice the merchants and business men of Portland interested in organizing a Board of Trade, met at the Council Chamber last night. Mr. R. G. Sneath in the chair and Mr. T. B. Tre[illegible] acting as Secretary.

The committee to draft constitution and by-laws reported, and their report was unanimously adopted.

[illegible] a schedule of charges, commissions, [illegible] read was adopted, after which twenty four [illegible] were signed to the Constitution and By-laws, and the ticket as reported by the committee, was unanimously elected.

The newly elected President and Secretary [illegible] installed in their respective positions after [illegible] the Board was regularly opened for business.

The following are the names of signers to the constitution and by-laws: W. S. Ladd, A. M. Loryea, H. C. Leonard, Elwin Russell, J. F. [illegible], J. Kaufman, P. J. Martin, A. Myers, M. [illegible], John McCracken, John R. Foster, [illegible], Chas. Hodge, W. K. Leveridge, J. Pet. Smith, [illegible] L. Story, A. Labbe, R. S. McLaran, Jacob [illegible], S. Burrell, Dan. J. Malarky, T. Dit[illegible], M. Goldsmith, Alex. P. Ankeny.

The following are the names of officers and members of the Board: President—W. S. Ladd. Vice Presidents—C. H. Lewis, John McCraken. Secretary—John M. Drake. Committee of Arbitration—P. C. Schuyler, A. [illegible], P. Wasserman, W. J. Van Schuyver, [illegible]. Committee on Appeals—Henry Failing, B. [illegible], M. S. Burrell, M. B. Millard, E. [illegible]. Committee on Finance—E. Quackenbush, L. [illegible], E. Russell. Committee on Library—O. M. Carter, L. White, [illegible]. Committee on Membership—S. G. Reed, C. H. [illegible], H. C. Leonard.

A report was read from the Secretary of the [illegible], exhibiting the business of that [illegible] from its commencement to July 1st, [illegible] which was ordered to be furnished to the [illegible] for publication. The Committee soliciting [illegible] for the Labor Exchange reported [illegible] had secured subscriptions amounting to [illegible] for six months.

[illegible] Higgins Hogg, by request made some [illegible] relative to a proposed location of a colony [illegible] families from Australia at [illegible] place in this State.

[illegible] was elected an honorary member of [illegible], a vote of thanks was tendered him, [illegible] he had rendered in organizing [illegible].

The Board then adjourned.

The Theater.—The extreme heat of the [illegible] has operated much against the interest of [illegible] people, but yet the amusements of [illegible] have attracted two or three very good [illegible]. Diavolo, a very pretty burlesque, [illegible] the principal card of the week. The [illegible] of the people an excellent [illegible] display their ability in favorite rolls. [illegible] Beppo, a particularly heavy villain [illegible] the greatest share of credit for the success [illegible] of the piece. The adoption of [illegible] and things and events in Portland, Oregon, and the current slang [illegible], the local hits, etc., were [illegible] by him, and very neatly, too. [illegible] His acting in the piece, also [illegible] struck the right cord in his audi[illegible]. Annie Pixley played Diavolo quite [illegible] of the crowd. Her make up [illegible] and her acting quite creditable. [illegible] deserves special mention for the life [illegible] of her personation. She generally [illegible] to get through with whatever [illegible] in such a manner as to create a [illegible] impression upon the audience. [illegible] "Alleash" was but common[illegible] did quite well as a promising [illegible]. Miss Ingles was hardly dashing [illegible] most of her personations she seems [illegible] some unaccountable restraint. [illegible] takes the impression that [illegible] do much better if she would only let [illegible] good hit or two in the open[illegible]. In which piece also Mr. Vinson ex[illegible] of his peculiar genius.

[illegible] Mr. Jas. O'Meara returned by last [illegible] material for a large morning [illegible] daily newspaper to be called the [illegible]. All particulars are set forth in the [illegible] to be found on our second page. Mr. [illegible] will have editorial charge. Dr. A. A. [illegible] of San Francisco, will be on the edi[illegible] staff. Of this gentleman we have [illegible] flattering notices in the California [illegible]. He was formerly local editor of the San [illegible] Times, then Legislative correspondent [illegible], and lately has belonged to the ed[illegible] staff of that paper. The Sacramento [illegible] of him: "Having had much and [illegible] knowledge of this gentleman's capabilities, [illegible] confidently congratulate our Oregonian [illegible] on the prospect of securing a live jour[illegible] able writer and a gentlemanly associ[illegible] Doctor. We wish him a pleasant jour[illegible] and prosperous career in his new home." [illegible] and we presume that we might [illegible] behalf of the Oregon press—we give the [illegible] welcome to his journalistic position. Of [illegible] O'Meara we need to say nothing. He is [illegible] known as an able newspaper con[illegible] man on the North Pacific coast, [illegible] the labors of these two gentle[illegible] expect to find the Bulletin a lively [illegible] among the established newspapers of [illegible].

[illegible] Weather?—We have found out [illegible]. It's the spots on the sun. In [illegible] was cool, and by a coincidence, [illegible] numerous spots were discovered [illegible] dark spots. The philosophers, the [illegible] scientists and numerous other [illegible] and fools, immediately seized upon [illegible] seizure—and made them [illegible] the most satisfactory manner, for the [illegible]. Well, the spots, according to the [illegible] dispatches from the old dad [illegible] still there and still mighty in [illegible] influences. They cooled off [illegible] and now they are engaged in [illegible] cooling off July. They have [illegible] to 102 degrees in the shade, [illegible] enough in the same di[illegible] get it down to 190 [illegible] things, under certain cir[illegible] in this present case, they have [illegible] as coolers. If Bill [illegible] had not already said so, we should be [illegible] with unction, "oot, damned [illegible]" we couldn't hope to pass the remark [illegible] and we must content ourself with [illegible] the fools who first found out that [illegible].

J. H. Cline and wife to Mary Cline; a piece of land containing 110 acres—$500.

[illegible] and wife to Portland Water Co.; property known as "The Portland Water [illegible]"—$1.

J. H. Lambert and wife to J. W. Cullen; a [illegible] of land which contains 159 acres—$1,000.

[illegible] and wife to Geo. Weidler; lots 7 [illegible] block 17—$8,000.

J. H. Lambert and wife to W. M. Moore, 10 [illegible] of land, situated in S. 11 T. 1 S. R. 1 E.—[illegible]

[illegible] Survey.—Mr. W. H. Martin of the [illegible] Martin & Co., builders of the Sacramento [illegible] railroad and wagon bridge, arrived by the last [illegible] to examine the matter of constructing a [illegible] across the Wallamet at this city. The survey of the river will be commenced this morning [illegible] Martin and Capt. F. H. West of the [illegible], with a view of ascertaining what will [illegible] cost and plan of the bridge. Prof. David[illegible] of the U. S. Coast Survey, in charge of Pa[illegible] district, has written that he will be here [illegible] August to survey the bridge site on be[illegible] of the United States.

[illegible] Bowman vs. Ben Holladay et al.; judgment [illegible] on verdict in the sum of $40, and [illegible] ordered to pay the costs of suit. [illegible] vs. the Willamette Iron Works; [illegible] rendered in favor of plff. for the sum of [illegible]. [illegible] Charles Ingalls; indictment for lar[illegible] submitted and jury returned a ver[illegible] [illegible]

Brief Mention.—There will be a regular meeting of the First Hebrew Benevolent Association of Portland, at the Turn Verein Hall on Sunday, 10th inst.

The steamer Oneonta will make a moonlight excursion to-night, to Vancouver and back. Tickets only one dollar.

The County Commissioners have ordered repairs to the East Portland bridge. The Commissioners will meet again to-day.

The river has fallen so much that nearly all of the old temporary track of the railroad, at East Portland, is again in sight.

The Daily and Weekly Bulletin.—Barker's building, on Front street, has been secured as an office for the Oregon Bulletin, the paper which will be started by Mr. O'Meara in a few days. The building is now being arranged and fitted to meet the requirements of a newspaper office. The scope and objects of the new paper may be judged of by the advertisement announcing it, which appears in our columns.

Odd Fellows' Installation.—On Wednesday night, the following officers for Samaritan Lodge No. 2, I. O. O. F., for the term beginning July 1st, were installed by J. N. Dolph, D. D. G. M.: Joseph Kidder, N. G.; John Rines, V. G.; Van B. Delashmutt, R. S.; U. E. Hicks, P. S.; Chas. Hodge, Treasurer.

Sunstroke—A Fatal Case.—A telegram per the Oregon and California Railroad Co's line, dated Aurora, June 7th, 3 P. M., says: "A man by the name of Mike Collins was sunstroke here yesterday and died in two hours." This is the only fatal case of sunstruck we remember ever to have heard of in Oregon.

Portland and the East.—An agency has been established in this city to sell through tickets to any point in the Eastern States. Persons desirous of getting a "through ticket" from here can do so now. We will publish, in a few days, in another portion of our paper, the details of this important matter.

Looking for Lands.—Mr. T. E. Hogg whose letter of inquiry to Dr. Loryea, was some time since published in the Oregonian, arrived by the last steamer to look at this country in person. He is acting for an Australian emigration company proposing to establish a colony on this coast.

Time at Last Makes all Things Even.—Only a short time ago our people were complaining of too much rain. If summer here didn't begin punctually as advertised it is now making up for lost time in the fervor, ardency and interest of the exhibition.

For Astoria.—The steamer Fannie Troup, Capt. Richard Hoyt, will make another trip to Astoria, starting to-morrow, and we are informed that she will probably continue these trips every Saturday. The Troup will return on Monday.

Did Not Go.—Rev. Dr. Lindsley, whose name appeared in the passenger list the other morning of the steamer to San Francisco, did not go. He is here in the city and will officiate as usual at the Presbyterian church on Sunday.

To Whom it May Concern.—Phil. Saunders wishes us to say that if men (?) and boys do not desist from bathing in the river, within the city, in open daylight, they will surely be arrested.

New Justices' Office.—Mr. A. M. Snyder, Justice of the Peace for Madison Precinct, has opened an office on Morrison street, between Fifth and Sixth. E. B. Davidson is constable.

CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA.

The mines of the Pinto (Nevada) district are passing into the hands of capitalists able to develop them. The latest transaction is the sale of the Cutter, Shiloh, and two other mines situated on the west side of White Pine Mountain, to a party of Cincinnati gentlemen. The price reported is $130,000, including in the sale a water privilege and sawmill with its lumber—all contiguous to the mines.

In consequence of the drought in southern parts of California some of the owners of large flocks and herds are forced to kill their animals to prevent utter loss. They save by this method the hides and tallow, and salt down the choice parts of the meat. On the island of Santa Cruz, near the coast of Santa Barbara, a company of sheep raisers have 50,000 head of sheep. They are making the most of a large part of them by slaughtering them in this way. The sheep would bring $2 50 per head in San Francisco, but the owners cannot take them there.

On the 22d June the sundry civil service expenses bill was reported to the House, and Mr. Dawes, remarking that it was the last of the appropriation bills, proceeded to explain and show by figures how the Committee on Ways and Means had kept its promise to cut down appropriations. He said the several bills reported to the House covered an expenditure (except for permanent appropriations) of $141,753,502, being $13,343,225 less than the estimates, and $8,957,939 less than the corresponding appropriations for the present year. Mr. Dawes said he took some pride in submitting this result to the House.

From the Grass Valley (Cal.) Union we clip the following account of a newspaper carrier's adventure: Grass Valley has three or four newspaper carriers, all of them polite and accommodating in their ways. One of these gentlemen received a back-set the other day, which caused him to think his occupation is not doing as much good to the public as he had previously thought. He was delivering a daily at the house of a subscriber, when the wife of the subscriber happened to see him. She gave him a lecture: "See here young man don't leave that paper here any more; my man, when he is at home, sets too long readin' that paper, and don't dig around the trees half enough. Don't leave that paper nor nary nother one at this house." The carrier thought about suggesting that perhaps digging about the roots of a fellow's hair, on the inside of the head and among the brains might be quite as good a thing for the head of a family, as cultivating, constantly, a few trees, but he looked at the determined countenance of the female, and concluded to forego his lecture, for fear of having the roots of his own hair disturbed by a broomstick.

CURRENT NOTES.

A little school boy in Danvers, Mass., when asked by his teacher why women should not vote answered: "'Cause they are afraid of caterpillers."

When Gen. Banks' voice failed him in his recent Cuban speech, an outsider was cruel enough to make a remark to the effect that "Another of the National Banks had busted."

Considerable shipments of Frazer river salmon and a fish called colachans are being sent to the Sandwich Islands. From the description of the latter fish we judge that its flesh is more agreeable to the palate than its name is to the tympanum. It is only found in British Columbia.

The work on the Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill., will be completed so far as the funds now in the treasury will pay for before winter. This will cover the expense of the monument, the Lincoln statue, and the United States coat of arms. About $55,000 more will be necessary for the group of war statuary.

A young factory operative in Lawrence, Mass., borrowed $2 of a lady friend recently, and subsequently took her to the circus. On pay day he refunded the amount very promptly, after deducting the fifty cents her circus ticket cost him. The lady has come to the conclusion that she will not marry that prudent young man. She had "hopes" before.

Our Citizens certainly deserve credit, for the energy they display to make the Oregon Immigration and Labor Exchange a success and benefit to the State, as well as the immigrants coming to our State. Every citizen should give all the aid in their power to help the large [illegible] of strangers coming to our State and not forget to inform them that Kohn & Fisher, No. 91 Front street, have the largest stock of clothing in Oregon, other goods are of superior quality and sold at extreme low prices.

Three Requisites of Health.

If all the sickly people in the world were to take to their beds, and demand medical treatment, there would not be doctors enough to attend them, nor a sufficient number of the robust to nurse them. Three conditions are absolutely essential to health, viz: a good appetite, easy digestion and the ability to sleep soundly. Seven-eighths of the many thousands who suffer from indisposition, yet do not labor under serious disease, complain that they "can't eat," that their stomachs are "out of order," or that they "don't sleep well." For this class of ailments few persons think of calling in a physician. Nor is it necessary, inasmuch as a course of Hostetter's Bitters, will certainly relieve the derangements of the stomach, the liver, and the nervous system, from which want of appetite, indigestion and sleeplessness arise. This excellent vegetable tonic and corrective is also a delightful anodyne. Insomnia (or incapacity to sleep), which has resisted all the ordinary remedies, will yield readily to this pleasant sedative taken just before retiring to rest. In ordinary medical practice it is usual to give a stomachic, an aperient, an invigorant, a soporific, or an antiseptic, as the case for the time being may seem more particularly to require; but in this grand restorative all these medicinal properties, and many others are blended in due proportion. Thus the digestion is stimulated, while the bowels are regulated, the liver toned, the strength recruited, the nerves calmed, the fluids purified and the circulation equalized. It is believed that there is no other restorative and regulating medicine in the world which acts so beneficially and agreeably upon all the assimilating and secretive organs at the same time, and to all who lack the three fundamental principles of health and enjoyment, a vigorous appetite, sound digestion and refreshing sleep, it is confidently recommended for a specific.

Change of Water.—Persons accustomed to the spring and well water of the North, cannot safely drink the water of our Southern and Western States in an unqualified state without imminent peril to their health. A mere change of water under the most favorable circumstances, will tend to disorder, in some degree, the digestive organs. The best-known safeguard against the unpleasant and often dangerous effects arising from these causes, is PLANTATION BITTERS, at the same time it is the best tonic and appetizer in the world.

The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commends here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. PROPOSALS

For Furnishing and Delivering the Cut Stone required in the construction of the U. S. Custom-House, Post Office, &c., to be received at Portland, Oregon.

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until M. of the eighth day of August, 1870, for furnishing and delivering at the site of building, at Portland, Oregon, all of the cut stone work, inclusive of and above the water table, but excluding steps, required for the United States Custom House and Post Office, according to the drawings numbered 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, and the terms of this advertisement.

The stone required for the building must be of the best quality granite, limestone, sandstone, or other free stone.

No stone will be considered that has not a fine grain, is not of uniform color, free from iron or other discoloring substances, and capable of withstanding the action of the elements, and from quarries that have been fully tested by actual use in other buildings.

All of the stone must be of bright and uniform color, free from sap or rifts, or any other defects and must be sound in every particular. They must be cut full to the square and true, out of wind, sharp and clean on all arises, and of the dimensions required by the drawings.

If defects are screened or concealed by artificial insertions or compositions, such stones as are so manipulated will be rejected, as will also all stone which has been defaced in boxing or during transportation by iron rust, grease, or in any other manner.

Each bid must be accompanied by a sample block, six inch cube, showing on its sides various grades of cutting applicable to the quality of the stone, and also embraced in the proposition; and the work to be done must be fully equal to the sample of the material selected. Delivery will be made at such times and in such quantities as may be required.

The work must be as described herein, and in accordance with the drawings before referred to, and will include all work and material necessary for the furnishing of the cut stone work ready to set.

The work must be done in strict accordance with the elevations and sections, and the bonding will be made thorough, to the satisfaction of the Superintendent, whether it be distinctly shown on the drawings or not. Lewis-holes are not required to be drilled by the contractor, and any lewis holes he may drill for his own convenience will not be allowed for. The expense of all trimming necessary to fit the ashlar or other work will be charged to the contractor, as the work must be perfect ready to set when delivered.

The ashlar will be back rebated into all door and window dressings as shown on the drawings. The entire job to be [illegible] to the satisfaction of the Superintendent and the approval of the Supervising Architect, or his agent.

Proposals must be made for the whole of the work, and all bids must be made on the printed form, and be accompanied by the bond of two responsible persons in the sum of ten thousand ($10,000) dollars that the bidder will accept and perform the contract if awarded him. The bond to be approved by the United States District Judge or Clerk of the United States Court of the district in which the bidder resides.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids if it be deemed for the interest of the Government to do so, and any bid that does not conform in every respect to the requirements of this advertisement will not be considered. Plans may be seen and forms of proposals may be procured on application to this office.

Payments to be made monthly, upon delivery and acceptance of the stone, by the Superintendent, deducting ten per cent. until the final completion of the contract.

Proposals must be enclosed in a sealed envelope, endorsed "Proposals for Cut Stone Work for United States Post Office and Custom House, Portland, Oregon," and will be addressed to jy7dtd E. StJOHN, Superintendent.

TRIBUTES TO CHARLES DICKENS.

The mails from Europe bring the English papers with comments on the death of Charles Dickens. The following is from the London Times:

We have had greater writers both in poetry and prose. But they were not in our day and generation. For us just now this loss is our greatest. It would have been great at any time from the moment when he turned with aversion from the drudgery of a solicitor's office, amid the forebodings of his friends, and thenceforward rose in the clear light of literature, until he soared in the sunshine of success far above all his fellows. There are minds of such jealous fiber that the very merits of an author, his mightiest gifts and his most special talents, only serve as food on which to nourish their prejudices. Such are they who, while forced to admit the wit, humor, and power of Charles Dickens, always added, "but he was vulgar." Yes, in one sense he was vulgar; he delighted in sketching the characters not of dukes and duchesses, but of the poor and lowly. He had listened to their wants and sorrows, seen them in their alleys and garrets, had learnt their accents and dialect by heart, and then with a truth and liveliness all his own, he photographed them in his immortal works. In this sense alone was Charles Dickens "vulgar." He was of the people, and lived among them. His was not the close atmosphere of a saloon or of a frocking-house. In the open air of the streets and woods and fields he lived and had his being, and so he came into closer union with common men, and caught with an intuitive force and fullness of feature every detail of their daily life. His creations have been naturalized, so to speak, among all classes of the community, and are familiar to every man, high or low.

When a great writer, on his death-bed, was with his last breath instructing his children in the secret of his success, he said: "Be natural my children, for the writer that is natural has fulfilled all the rules of art." And this was pre-eminently the case with Charles Dickens. His great characters have struck fast root in the hearts of his countrymen for this, above all other reasons, that they are natural—natural both relatively to the writer who created them, and to the station in life in which they are supposed to live. Like the giant who revived as soon as he touched his mother earth, Charles Dickens was never so strong as when he threw himself back on the native soil of the social class among which he had been born and bred, whose virtues, faults and foibles he could protray with a truth and vigor denied to any other man. That he was eminently successful may be proved by his works. He is gone, indeed, but they remain behind, and will long speak for him. Every day will only add to the universal feeling that he wrote not for this age alone, but for all time, and that this generation, in loosing sight of him, will hardly look upon his like again.

The Daily News, a paper which, it will be remembered, Mr. Dickens established, says:

Never was human being more "thorough." His friendship was a fervent reality, and he spared no pains, and withheld no exertion, to serve those whom he thought worthy, and to whom his countenance was valuable. The whole energy of his nature—and the passage in David Copperfield in which the hero attributes whatever success he has acquired in life to his faculty of devoting his whole strength and thoughts to the subject in hand, whatever it might be, precisely describes Charles Dickens himself—was given to the friend as readily and fully as to the day's work, and it would be impossible to say more. Again, this kindly helpfulness was more valuable in Dickens than in most men, from his shrewd common sense, his worldly wisdom, his business habits, his intense regard for accuracy in detail. What he said should be done, those who knew him regarded as accomplished. There was no forgetfulness, no procrastination, no excuse, when the time for granting a promised favor came. His hours and days were spent by rule. He rose at a certain time, he retired at another, and, though no precisian, it was not often that his arrangements varied. His hours for writing were between breakfast and luncheon, and when there was work to be done no temptation was sufficiently strong to [illegible] be neglected. This order and regularity followed him through the day. His mind was essentially methodical, and in his long walks, in his recreations, in his labor, he was governed by rules laid down for himself by himself, rules well studied before hand, and rarely departed from. The so-called men of business, the people whose own exclusive devotion to the science of profit and loss makes them regard doubtfully all whom to that same science is not the main object of life, would have been delighted and amazed at this side of Dickens' character. Proud of literature as a mistress whom it was a privilege to serve, true to the profession of letters as among the highest of human callings, he was ever careful to preserve the untarnished trust conferred on him by his genius, and never forgot that it was as important to self-respect to be exact in small things as in great. Other celebrated men may be pardoned for the minor sins of forgetfulness and impracticability in worldly affairs; but of Charles Dickens it may be said that he had within himself the elements of success in almost any walk of life, that he never broke a promise, nor failed a friend.

If Mr. Dickens did not succeed in appreciating the nicer superficial distinctions of society, or even in seeing through them the actual men and women whom they cover, yet when he was among the classes whom he best loved to depict, he showed himself a most profound observer of mankind. It is too, honorable to him as an individual rather than as an artist that he always showed himself unable to seize or to understand the darker side of human nature. But when he presented a type taken from the middle or the lower classes it was with a master hand. His fame rests, in its essential parts, upon works that appeal to the sympathies and feelings of all mankind, and that strike notes which will never cease to vibrate as long as the world exists. Now that he has gone from among us we cannot but feel that a void is left where he stood, and that we have lost a man who, in spite of shortcomings, has done more than any other that lived in his time to make English literature loved and admired.

The annexed is from an article in the London Telegraph:

Mr. Dickens was essentially a public servant, and at his post as a public servant he has fallen. The Ministers who broaden our liberties, who purify and improve the mechanism of our social life, have their distinct mission and reward; so have the commanders who lead our fleets and armies to victory. But who can tell how much greater than battles or reform bills, or even than education schemes, is the constant, elevating, touching and softening powers of such writers as Dickens? In a hundred ways this great novelist who has just departed has done for his country what his countrymen will never be able to measure aright. The political, the economical, the scientific sides of the human mind, all have their set and valued instructors and authorities; but shall not the affections and the emotions, too, have their guides, their teachers, their chosen apostles? True, we leave the supply of this great need much to chance, or the drift of the genius of the particular age; and when we have got the man who expresses in pure and ennobling forms the best impulses and warmest sympathies of that age, we are content to pay him handsomely and to applaud him unsparingly. We shall, perhaps, some day do something more; meanwhile, in paying our hurried first tribute of sorrow and honor to the memory of Charles Dickens, we insist that he has lived as a public servant, and as a public servant also he has died. The workman has fallen at his task, the warrior has died in his harness. Every Englishman knows how to honor such a life and such a death.

The weekly press also adds its testimonial to the great novelist. The Spectator pronounces Mr. Dickens to be the greatest humorist England has ever produced, and calls attention to the wonderful influence his writings have exerted in softening the strong lines of demarkation between the various classes of English society, and the extraordinary stimulus they have given to the various great efforts of the day for ameliorating wretchedness and reclaiming crime. It adds:

And yet Mr. Dickens has not only never been a professional philanthropist, but he has exerted his great powers to the utmost to ridicule professional philanthropy. It was the great triumph of his humor to sharpen the vision of mankind for hideous moral contrasts, which he knew as little as any of us how to remove; and for the systematic methods of attacking which he had even less taste than most other men—his genius, like most other geniuses, revolting against system, and the conventional types it tends to produce. Mr. Dickens, it is true, looked with a more than approving eye on all aspects of jollity, even though accompanied, as they so often are, with self-indulgent weaknesses, and with a detestation perfectly morbid on those meaner and harsher elements in human nature which are fatal to jolity. He was far too fond, also, of pushing his doctrine of geniality to the point of sentimental falseness. Still, the deficiencies, such as they were in Mr. Dicken's literary morality have really done far less to relax the moral ideal society unduly, than his marvelous powers as a humorist have done to teach us how unduly stringent it has often been through mere ignorance. His delight in the grotesque has done more than ever Mr. John Stuart Mill by any philosophical defense of liberty could do, to make us tolerant towards individual eccentricity of almost every shade, and even to teach us to pet it with something like parental fondness. And he has given a greater impulse than any man of his generation to that righteous hatred of caste-feeling and class-cruelty which more and more distinguishes modern society.

The subjoined is from the Saturday Review:

Mr. Dickens was to himself always something more than an artist. He set himself a variety of tasks, the due discharge of which seemed to him of great importance. He had certain doctrines in morals which he wished to inculcate. He was bent on preaching the views of charity and tolerance which he loved it to be of great use to men to hold, and to hold firmly. Much of the liberalism of the present day in England, and its peculiar type, is due to Mr. Dickens. So far as the exclusiveness of religious sects has died away in England, its decay may fairly be in a large measure attributed to the circulation of Mr. Dickens' works in the families even of the most exclusively religious people. There was also in all his works an unvarying respect for the sanctity of the despotism of beadles, and the recklessness of the lower herd of schoolmasters. His evident sincerity of purpose gave a kind of dignity to his writings, and took away from them all air of coming from a man who was merely making merry to get money from the public. Lastly, he was an artist who was not only fond of his art and proud of his success in it, but who looked on art as imposing duties and responsibilities on those who devote themselves to it. He always accepted the applause of the public as a tribute not only to himself but to the calling he pursued, and to the high aims with which it might be connected.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune writes:

The suddenness of his death has taken the London press by surprise. There seems to have been at first a desire to keep his illness a secret. He was attacked at his home near Rochester, about twenty-five miles from London, Wednesday evening at dinner. Nothing was known of it by the evening papers of the day following. Physicians arrived in rapid succession from the neighboring town and from London. They all agreed that the case was hopeless from the first moment. His was one of those thoroughbred natures that go on working at full speed till the last moment; then, without any premonitory symptom of weakness or any sensible failure of energies or faculties, break up in a moment. His sister-in-law was with him; his son and two daughters were telegraphed for and arrived in time to stand by his bed as the lamp went finally out. From the first moment to the last he remained unconscious, and no spoken farewell softened the bitter grief of relatives and friends.

The same correspondent gives the following in regard to his books and copyrights:

He owned the copyright of every one of his novels. In early days, it is true, before his fame had increased and before the property in any one of his novels had become a fortune, he had sold his rights as author in a considerable number of his books. All these he re purchased, often by dint of great trouble, and by difficult negotiations, always at a price far beyond that which they had brought in the beginning. It was not only a matter of calculation with Mr. Dickens, it was a matter of pride. His books are his children; he did not want them in a stranger's hand, nor subject to the authority of anybody but their author. The copyrights were much dispersed, and when it became known that Mr. Dickens was bent on buying them up, the price, which was already high, advanced very considerably. The British book publisher is just as capable of driving a hard bargain as his American rival, and Mr. Dickens had to pay dearly for his discovery of that interesting fact. At last he carried his point, and held in his own grasp by a good legal title all his earlier writings. With the latter he had never parted; with none, I suppose, during the last twenty years. Every six months Messrs. Chapman & Hall handed in their accounts. It was Mr. Dickens who settled the terms of publication, the form in which each successive edition should appear, and all other details. What is called the Charles Dickens edition was his idea and his favorite, not on account of its beauty or readableness, for it is printed compactly in small type, but on account of its cheapness. What pleased him was that everybody should be able to buy a complete set of his writings, and so he had them all condensed into, I think, seventeen volumes, separately published and sold at the shillings and sixpence each. He understood the market, studied it, and adapted the supply of his books to the demand. He told me four years ago that the copyright of each one of his books became every year more valuable; that is, brought in more actual money. It is to be regretted there is no really satisfactory edition among the many that have appeared. I think it was always Mr. Dicken's intention to issue his complete works in a form worthy of their place in literature; perhaps after what is now called the library edition had been exhausted or the stereotype plates from which it is printed worn out; or perhaps after the series had grown more complete in his own mind, and better satisfied his restless eagerness for work. He had as little occasion as any man to be troubled by hostile criticism. If it pleased the writers in Blackwood to flourish their tomahawks about his head, they might indulge their fancy without hurting their target. But it is possible enough that Mr. Dickens disliked to be told that his great powers were failing, and that he had never done anything equal to Pickwick, written at twenty four. So long as there were people to say he could not write up to his old mark, so long he would have kept writing. He had a just pride in his capacity for work, and I doubt whether if he had lived 20 years longer he would have thought his series complete, or if he ever would have distrusted his ability to compose a new romance so long as his hand could hold a pen.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

PORTLAND, Thursday, July 7, 1870.

Gold at New York, last evening, 111¾.

Legal Tenders quotable at 91@92c.

For various reasons, mentioned heretofore, money is somewhat scarce in circulation, and the supply at the banks is rather less than usual. Rates of interest unchanged.

By the last papers from San Francisco, we observe that there was at the end of the last month, a more than ordinarily urgent demand for money, incident to the close of the fiscal year and for the payment of Federal taxes. The accumulation at the banks was rather larger than a month ago. Call loans firm and active at 1a1¼ per cent. at bank and 1½@2 ₱ cent. per month on the street. Coin drafts on Atlantic cities quotable at 1¼ ₱ cent; Currency drafts, 9¼ ₱ cent. premium on gold; Telegrams, 1¼ ₱ cent.; Exchange on London, [illegible] for 60 day bankers' bills. Gold Bars, 890@[illegible]; Silver Bars, par to 1½ ₱ cent. premium.

The Alta of the 1st reports that the operations of the Mint were again large the past month. The deposits of gold reached 79,808.94 ounces, and of silver 30,766 oz. The deposits in June last year were 81,825 ounces gold and 8,665 ounces silver. The coinage had been $1,840,000 gold, against $1,340,000 in June last year, and 46,000 half dollars, against 8,000 last year—making an aggregate of $1,840,000, against $1,348,000. The gold deposits have been as follows:

	Ozs.	Per Oz.	Value.
Refined gold	32,363 82	$20 66	$668,2[illegible] 52
Crude gold	47,445 12	17 60	8[illegible],259 50
Total	79,808.94		$1,4[illegible],525 02

The deposits at the Mint were diminished by the export of fine gold mentioned above, which would otherwise have gone into the Mint.

The operations for five months as compared with the same period last year, in gold, were as follows:

	1869 Deposits, Ozs.	1869 Coinage.	1870 Deposits, Ozs.	1870 Coinage.
January	9,156	$405,000	64,280 00	$1,016,282 56
February	16,623	185,000	76,574 00	1,520,717 54
March	46,371	680,000	80,752 70	2,160,000 00
April	135,136	1,565,000	83,647 30	1,620,000 00
May	61,667	940,000	110,426 81	2,100,000 00
June	81,825	1,340,000	79,808 94	1,840,000 00
Total	352,008	$5,115,000	455,[illegible]9 83	$10,[illegible]28,000 20

The deposits exceed those of last year by 103,701 ozs, and the coinage is near double.

The local merchandise market is quiet, trade having scarcely recovered from the check given it by the occurrence of the national holiday. We note a continued good business in agricultural goods, but in all other lines there is nothing worthy of note doing. Prices are generally as heretofore quoted.

PRODUCE—Business is quiet. Wheat, buying price, same as before, with but limited demand and small offerings. Oats are lower.

PROVISIONS—All kinds of bacon have declined a shade; demand very light. Lard is also lower and without inquiry. Eggs are scarce and higher, though dealers are chary of buying more than will supply immediate demands of the home market.

Below we annex a statement of the Pacific coast China trade for the last six months, ending June 30th, as prepared by the Bulletin:

Merchandise exports have been as follows:

1870.	China.	Japan.
January	$ 96,650	$52,094
February	141,044	58,615
March	149,131	30,402
April	118,468	52,087
May	67,813	31,428
June	62,509	41,414
Totals	$636,515	$261,528

Making a combined total of $893,043, which compares as follows with the same for the corresponding period in previous years:

	1867.	1868.	1869.
China	$610,652	$604,793	$652,426
Japan	203,103	187,818	323,787
Totals	$813,755	$790,611	$976,213

While the amount for the past six months is $78,000 less than last year, it is larger for the same time in previous years.

	1868.	1869.	1870.
China, bbls	14,858	72,236	85,729
Japan	4,124	5,705	13,243
Totals	18,982	77,941	98,972

The quantity for the past six months is unprecedentedly large. At the close, the steamer and the ship Malay are the only vessels receiving freight for that destination. Our exports of treasure were as annexed for the past six months:

1870.	China.	Japan.
January	$655,410	$37,666
February	431,832	204,000
March	311,805	23,979
April	1,217,081	5,000
May	......	......
June	149,534	51,645
Totals	$3,365,412	$323,290

Showing a combined total of $3,688,702, which compares as follows with similar exports for the same period in previous years:

	1867.	1868.	1869.
Japan	36,769	213,360	1,678,867
Totals	$3,870,169	$2,238,018	$5,079,106

Our combined exports to China and Japan aggregate $4,387,000 for the past six months, against $6,665,000 for the same time in 1869, $3,029,000 in 1868 and $4,684,000 in 1867. The tonnage movement between San Francisco and China and Japan for the first six months of the year compares as follows:

1865	22	18,365	25	19,729
1866	26	15,212	25	14,865
1867	19	22,021	21	20,560
1868	18	24,804	11	25,399
1869	19	35,768	17	31,271
1870	19	38,622	20	30,110

IN SOME RESPECTS WRONG.—John Gray & Co's San Francisco Market Review for July 1st, discussing the crop prospects for 1870, takes occasion to speak of the trade of Oregon, the Columbia river and bar, etc., in terms with which the facts do not altogether agree. It says:

One thing is certain, the quantity of Wheat will be superior to that of last year, while the Oregon crop will be equally good in quality and much larger in quantity. It should be remarked in passing that continued efforts are being made to export both Flour and Grain from Oregon direct; but the Bar entrance to the Columbia river is a serious barrier to vessels other than those of light draft, and even those are frequently detained at the mouth of the Columbia river, waiting a safe opportunity to enter. At present the trade of Portland is mainly carried on by coast steamers and sailing packets of light draft. A regular line of barks has, however, been kept up between Honolulu for a year or more, exchanging produce with advantage. A few small vessels during the past year or two, have also arrived in the Columbia river, both from New York and Boston, and they in turn dispatched to Atlantic with Grain, Flour, etc., but with what measure of success the business has been attended, we are not advised. Suffice it to say that up to this time Oregon exports to distant marts other than to California have not been of magnitude, though, judging from other Pacific slope developments, auxiliary to a more extended network of railways throughout the States of this coast, the direct future trade of Oregon must, in the necessity of the case, become of considerable magnitude.

That "the bar entrance to the Columbia river is a serious barrier to vessels other than those of light draft," is altogether erroneous. The channel is not only deep but wide and straight. If we are not mistaken, the official surveys have demonstrated that at the lowest water there is nowhere in the channel less than six fathoms, a depth certainly sufficient to float any merchant vessel now in use. There are some obstructions in the Columbia and Wallamet, but the bar channel is not only deep but entirely safe—a much better entrance than that at New York.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are dragging out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life! In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his special study for years, and who is certain to cure the most severe cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars [illegible] satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, for Ten Dollars, sent in registered letter or through Wells, Fargo & Co.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers etc. Look over the San Francisco Directory, and you will not find their Medical Institutes in it, but you will find their former occupations in it. Look at the Directory for 1862 and 1863. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians, in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, diplomas, pretended patient's letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat disease that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, (Private Entrance on Commercial) San Francisco. Post office box 252.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 252 ON THE LETTER

Consultations FREE.

☞ Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.
